

Weekend Edition: 10 Things to Do in New York's Art World Before April 25

By Paul Laster • 04/21/16 6:19pm

Michael Mahalchick, Bananarama, (2016). (Photo: Courtesy the artist and Canada, New York)

Performance: “Michael Mahalchick: Narcissus III: A Night of Readings” at Canada
Michael Mahalchick is an artist with a knack for making work with whatever is at hand. That’s certainly true of his new collages and assemblage sculptures, which have been made from pieces of rock ‘n’ roll posters found outside his apartment door. For the exhibition, the artist is staging four performances featuring guest lecturers, readers and performers who will make presentations while he lays face down on a massage table gazing at his reflection in latex buckets filled with water—a fun-filled recreation of the myth of Narcissus, a hunter who fell in love with his mirror image and pined for it until he died. Canada, 333 Broome Street, New York, 6 p.m.

<http://observer.com/2016/04/weekend-edition-10-things-to-do-in-new-yorks-art-world-before-april-25/>