Collectors Susan and Michael Hort's Picks from FIAC 2016

By Artspace Editors

OCT. 21, 2016

The New York-based art collectors and philanthropists Susan and Michael Hort never miss a chance to travel the world in search of their next treasure (or treasures, as the case often is). This week, they're touring Paris on the occasion of FIAC, the French capital's largest art fair. Along the way, they carved out time to browse the nearby Paris Internationale art fair as well as galleries, museums, artists' studios, and Paris's infamous catacombs. Read on to see their thoughts on and photos of the works that caught their practiced eyes.

AROUND PARIS

TYSON REEDER

Galerie Bernard Ceysson

After flying all night we arrived in Paris, dropped our bags at the hotel, and started our tour. First stop was Bernard Ceysson, where they were preparing for a new installation of young American artists. One of them, Tyson Reeder, was our first highlight—we could not resist. We loved the painterly depiction of Times Square—his color sense is great. We originally started collecting his work from Daniel Reich Gallery.
