

VULTURE

Saltz, Jerry. "8 Art Shows We Can't Wait to See in 2024." Vulture, 3 Jan. 2024, www.vulture.com/2024/01/nyc-art-shows-openings-galleries-exhibits-2024.html.

8 Art Shows We Can't Wait to See in 2024

Haunting images from the Rust Belt, the glories of the Harlem Renaissance, and more.

The new season in art is awash in amazing shows in galleries and museums. The first third of 2024 will feature the world-building artist LaToya Ruby Frazier and a new look at the Met at an immense topic: the Harlem Renaissance. There will be both young artists and older talents like Stephen Shore exploring unfamiliar terrain, as well as superstar Cindy Sherman showing new work. Indulge!

Art: Courtesy of the artist and CANADA, New York; Photo: Adam Reich

"Joan Snyder: ComeClose"

Canada Gallery (January 12–February 24)

There is a look that might be called Canada Gallery: loud, funky, materialist, handmade, strange, ugly, poetic, and smart — and 83-year old Joan Snyder was Canada before it even existed. Her paintings look like quilts, with their many textured sections, but also like magic carpets for the ways they transport us.